

Academia, innovation, business, politics and systems thinking

- Academia need to have a long-term perspective
- Many paths to impacts
- Academia can contribute to many functions in an innovation system
- Academia can contribute in several phases of technological development
- Learnings from early niche markets are often critical
- Demanding private and public customers are often key actors.
- Environmental technology is often used in complex systems with many private and public actors